Notification of Regulatory Barriers

8. This draft Act on metrology and amendments to certain acts (hereinafter the 'draft Act') regulates the scope of national administrative bodies' authority for the area of metrology, statutory units of measurement and their use, classification and use of measuring instruments, national measurement standards and monitoring of national measurement standards, certified reference materials, requirements for specified measuring instruments, the method for the metrological inspection of specified measuring instruments for which calibration is mandatory, and the persons that may perform metrological inspections, official measurement, consumer packaging, the activity of businesses that install and repair specified measuring instruments and package or import consumer packaging, metrological supervision, imposition of fines, and international relations.

9. The objective of the draft Act is to streamline metrological legislation, for example eliminating duplicate and obsolete provisions. The draft Act should achieve a greater degree of harmonisation with comparable mechanisms in other countries and have a preventive effect in terms of protecting consumers from products or services that could endanger their lives, health, safety or property. The draft Act fully accepts requirements from international and European documents that apply to measuring instruments, metrological activity and metrology as such.
