5. Law on raw materials used by pharmacists

6. Raw materials used by pharmacists to prepare magistral and officinal preparations

7.

8. The draft aims to regulate raw materials, i.e. active substances and excipients intended for use by pharmacists in officinal or magistral preparations. The draft successively regulates the way in which a raw material can be manufactured, marketed and used, as well as the obligations of the various market players, namely the manufacturer, the distributor and the pharmacist.

9. The bill therefore aims to update the regulations on raw materials used by pharmacists with current practice in the field. This takes particular account of the European environment which Belgium forms a part of. The bill redefines, clarifies and harmonises requirements, quality and control standards to offer the patient, at the end of the chain, raw material of the highest possible quality, on the basis of which the pharmacist will prepare the magistral or officinal preparation for them.
