6. Electronic cigarettes and refill containers with liquid adapted for filling electronic cigarettes

7.

8. In order to limit the attractiveness and consumption of e-cigarettes, which are growing in popularity (particularly among young people) [1], appropriate measures are necessary. The first step already taken in Lithuania is the ban imposed on 1 July 2022 on placing on the market electronic cigarettes and e-cigarette refill containers with liquid adapted for filling electronic cigarettes, if this liquid contains flavours other than the smell and/or taste of tobacco, but the current regulation is not sufficient and allows business operators to circumvent the prohibitions by placing on the market electronic cigarettes with the characteristics of a certain smell and/or taste other than tobacco. The law establishes a definition of the added smell and/or taste of a tobacco product, which applies only to tobacco products, but does not apply to electronic cigarettes and their refill containers, the popularity of which has recently been increasing dramatically [1]. Currently, the Law prohibits the placing on the market of electronic cigarettes and e-cigarette refill containers with liquid adapted for filling electronic cigarettes, if this liquid contains flavours other than the smell and/or taste of tobacco. There is no list of authorised or prohibited tobacco flavouring substances approved by the law, which allows economic operators to argue that tobacco flavours are different and to interpret the term 'tobacco taste and smell' differently, thus placing on the market electronic cigarettes and their refill containers with certain non-tobacco smell and/or taste properties. The draft law therefore proposes to extend the concept of 'added taste or smell' to e-cigarettes. It is proposed to prohibit the placing on the market of electronic cigarettes and their refill containers with an added smell or taste other than the smell and/or taste of tobacco. It is likely that this will reduce the attractiveness of e-cigarettes and their refill containers, and prevent different treatment of the provisions of the Law. The draft law proposes to specify in sub-statutory legal acts the specific authorised chemicals that give the flavour of tobacco to electronic cigarettes and their refill containers and to indicate the CAS numbers of these substances. This would limit the possibility for economic operators to circumvent the prohibitions of the Law and to place on the market e-cigarettes and their refill containers with certain non-tobacco smell and/or taste properties. Amendments to the Law entered into force on 1 May 2022, whereby electronic cigarettes and their refill containers, which do not contain nicotine, also fell within the scope of the object of the Law and must bear a health warning on the unit packets of electronic cigarettes and their refill containers or any outside packaging "This product contains nicotine, which is a highly addictive substance. It is not recommended for non-smokers." Thus, it is inappropriate to indicate on a nicotine-free product that the product contains nicotine, and it is also misleading for consumers of e-cigarettes. Therefore, for the sake of clarity, it is proposed to exempt electronic cigarettes and their nicotine-free refill containers from the health warning requirement. In order to reduce the administrative burden of state institutions dealing with cases for violation of the provisions of the Law and to increase the speed of the proceedings in pending cases, the draft law proposes certain amendments to the procedures for the handling of cases concerning infringement of the Law. 9. The draft law was drafted in order to fill the gaps in the existing regulation, when, in the presence of a ban imposed on 1 July 2022 on the placing on the market of electronic cigarettes and their refill containers containing liquids adapted for filling electronic cigarettes, if this liquid contains flavours other than the smell and/or taste of tobacco, electronic cigarettes and their refill containers with certain non-tobacco flavour properties are still placed on the market, to reduce the attractiveness of electronic cigarettes and their refill containers for young people, also in order to guarantee a smoother application of the provisions of the Law and a smoother examination of cases for infringement of the provisions of this Law. Given that it is not appropriate to indicate the presence of nicotine on a nicotine-free product and that this is misleading for consumers of e-cigarettes and their refill containers, it is proposed to exempt electronic cigarettes and nicotine-free refill containers from the health warning requirement laid down in the Law.
